

Special Educational Needs & Disabilities at Banks Road

Information for Parents/Carers

What are Special Educational Needs & Disabilities?

A child is defined under the Children & Families Act 2014 as having a Special Educational Need if they:

- have a significantly greater difficulty in learning than the majority of others their age; or have a disability which hinders them from making use of general educational facilities.

At Banks Road we recognise that additional needs are vast and wide-ranging. A child could have a very short-term need in one area or on the other end of the spectrum a child may have a complex life-long need. At Banks Road we aim to support the whole child including their academic, emotional, physical, behavioural and social wellbeing.

What kinds of special educational needs does the school make provision for?

Banks Road currently makes provision for children with a variety of needs, including:

- Social, emotional, behavioural
- Cognition and learning
- Communication and interaction
- Physical and/or sensory
- Anxiety-related

We apply a graduated response to support:

1. Quality first teaching
2. SEN support – where it is determined that a pupil has additional needs parents will be advised and a four-part process will be put into place to minimise barriers to children's development:
 - a. Assess
 - b. Plan
 - c. Do
 - d. Review

Education, Health and Care Plan – If a child has a lifelong or significant difficulty they may undergo a statutory assessment process. This will occur where the needs of the child are such that a multi-agency approach is needed.

How does the school know if pupils need extra help and what should I do if I think that my child may have special educational needs?

A child's needs may be highlighted to school prior to their entry. Staff undertake a baseline assessment when your child begins school. By taking time to get to know your child, how they learn and what they already know, staff will be able to identify any difficulties your child may have. It may be that your child may begin to experience difficulties during their time at school, if school staff feel your child needs extra support this will be discussed with you and interventions will be planned and implemented following the graduated response.

If you think your child may have special educational needs it is important that you discuss these with your child's class teacher or the SENCO. This will enable us to work together to support your child and access any external support where needed.

How does the school evaluate the effectiveness of its provision for pupils with special educational needs?

At Banks Road Infant & Nursery School the teachers are incredibly effective at assessing and evaluating both themselves and the provision given to all children. All lessons are evaluated including assessing how particular groups or individual children do.

All our extra provision are all progress based - whereby the children are base-lined before the provision starts and again afterwards to accurately measure progress made by all the children. The effectiveness of these provisions is reviewed half-termly or termly depending on the type of intervention and needs of individual children.

How will both the school and I know how my child is doing and how will the school help me to support their learning?

School staff will continually monitor and track the learning of your child and where there are interventions or additional support in place the effectiveness of these will be continually reviewed.

This will be communicated to parents/carers through: Informal discussions/telephone calls; parents'/carers evenings; annual reports. In some cases parents/carers may meet with their child's class teacher and the SENCO on a more regular basis. The frequency and formality of meetings is dependent on the needs of the child and at the discretion of parents/carers and school staff.

What is the school's approach to teaching pupils with special educational needs? How will the curriculum and learning be matched to my child's needs?

Banks Road Infant & Nursery School is an inclusive school where all children regardless of their abilities are engaged and able to partake in all activities we offer. Where appropriate we will make adjustments to the curriculum, environment and activities so all children can access them. We endeavour to consider each child as an individual and tailor their learning accordingly.

How will my child be included in activities outside the classroom, including school trips?

Banks Road Infant & Nursery School is an inclusive school where all children regardless of their abilities are engaged and able to partake in all activities we offer. Where appropriate we will make adjustments to the curriculum, environment and activities so all children can access them.

How are decisions made about the type and amount of support my child will receive?

Each child is looked at as an individual at Banks Road. The support they will receive will depend on their needs and as such the nature and intensity is flexible. Small group academic, personal and social support is provided according to children's needs. At Banks Road developing children's independence skills is very important, therefore when planning support we aim to encourage independence at a level appropriate for each child.

Where further support is necessary for children to succeed in school additional funding can be sought and accessed through our Family of Schools and in cases of children with higher level needs from the Local Authority.

What support will there be for my child's overall well-being?

We recognise that some children have extra emotional and social needs that need to be developed and nurtured. At Banks Road we pride ourselves on our wellbeing and nurture provision. These needs can manifest themselves in a number of ways, including behavioural difficulties, anxiousness and being uncommunicative. If a child has a specific need such as low self-esteem they may also access positive play or nurture support groups.

Lunchtime and playtimes are supported through planned activities and spaces, places with special interest boxes for those who struggle at these times.

If a parent or teacher has concerns that a child is being bullied because of an identified need, the anti-bullying policy would come into force and procedures would be followed.

What training have staff supporting special educational needs had and what is planned?

The school provides training and support to enable all staff to improve the teaching and learning of children, including those with SEN. This includes whole school training on SEN; Nurture, autism spectrum disorder/condition (ASD/C), attachment disorder, speech and language difficulties, cognitive behaviour therapy (CBT), physiotherapy, dyslexia, mental health (the role of CAMHs).

In addition there is also further training specifically for personal care, booster groups, learning mentors, more able pupils and phonics and literacy intervention. Support from all outside agencies can also be sought to discuss needs and strategies to support individual pupils.

Each term the training needs of school staff are discussed based on the changing needs of pupils in our school, where needs arise training will be sought and provided.

What are the arrangements for consulting parents of pupils with special educational needs? How will I be involved in the education of my child?

Parents are reported to a minimum of three times a year - however, if your child is experiencing difficulties you will be invited in for a discussion about any issues and how these can be resolved. If your child continues to experience difficulties and the teacher believes there to be an issue of Special Educational Needs then you will be contacted and next steps will be identified for supporting your child in school.

Once your child has been identified with SEND then the teacher will adapt the curriculum and may make extra provision for your child and set areas for development. Parents are always consulted where a child has been identified with SEND and feedback from yourself is important to us as we understand that you know your children best.

Any targets/priority areas for development will be sent home and at any point you can meet with the teacher or SENCo to look at the targets/priorities set and help in the review process.

What are the arrangements for consulting young people with SEN and involving them in their education?

Where appropriate we also try and include the children in the support/target setting process and consult them on their progress and what help they would like to have next. We take into consideration the child's strengths and try and build on these to increase confidence and self-esteem.

What do I do if I have a concern or complaint about the SEND provision made by the setting?

We endeavour to deliver an individualised programme of provision for children within the school. However, if you were to become unhappy with the provision your child is receiving the first person to speak to would be the school SENCo - who will try to resolve any concerns and work with parents to adapt to change provision. If the matter was not resolved satisfactorily, the Headteacher and SEND Governor would listen to your concerns and together find an amicable solution. If again, it was not resolved to your satisfaction you may follow the school's Complaints Procedure.

How does the governing body involve other organisations and services (e.g. health, social care, local authority support services and voluntary organisations) in the meeting the needs of pupils with special educational needs and supporting the families of such pupils?

The governing body at Banks Road are heavily involved in ensuring the needs of children with SEND in our setting are met effectively. The governors with responsibility for SEND, Mrs Sarah Williams and Mrs Catherine Czarny, meet regularly with Rachael Leggat (SENCO) to discuss SEND provision, implementation of the policy and monitor the progress of children with SEND. The governors also receive a termly report to share the impact of SEND provision, updates in legislation as well as strengths and areas for development.
